PROGRAM NOTES
2:30 pm Concert

A Sunny Stroll by Ally Czyzewicz: Taking time to enjoy the beautiful nature around us is perhaps not something we do as often as we should. The little things in life that make each day special can so often be found in the most peculiar places. A rainbow can be so fleeting and yet so breathtaking at the same time. “A Sunny Stroll” combines a need for adventure with a warm sunny peacefulness that will leave you wanting just a little more sunshine in your life.

Fast Food Frenzy by Jan Mittelstaedt: When my granddaughter, Dorothy, was little, my husband and I used to meet her family at the former Lloyd Center food court on Sundays after church. There was lots going on: many choices of food and many people. And, I ended up watching Dorothy as she liked to run around. These wonderful times offered inspiration for this music.

Blue Note Suite by Paul Safar: These five short pieces can be played separately, together or split up by various students. I wrote this a number of years ago for my piano teaching studio.

Waterlily by Amy Fairchild: A lovely flower, drifting, tethered, across a moonlit pond. Twirling with the wind, dancing with the rain, but always entangled with its roots deep beneath the water.

A Trip to Sunnyside Road by Jan Mittelstaedt: This music is meant to go with a story written by Emmeline Chan, a very creative girl: Emmeline and her family are happy as they drive to her grandma’s house on Sunnyside Road, Portland. They look out the car window and see fall trees with colorful leaves and a bright blue sky. Suddenly, there is a huge thunderstorm which forces Dad to drive the car under a shelter. As they are waiting, the telephone starts to ring. It is Emmeline’s grandma who is worried about the family. Emmeline reassures her. After the storm is over, Dad drives the car out of the shelter and the family is on the way again. Upon their arrival, Emmeline runs to hug grandma and the family rejoices that they are safe and all together.

Small Organisms No. 1 by Christina Rusnak: During my elementary piano education, most of the recital works I learned were either easy renditions of Baroque and Classical era, or pieces which were created more for the purpose of exercising my fingers than for their musical qualities. Compositionally, I created Small Organisms to enable students to understand nuance - to learn the difference between playing the notes and playing music.

War?!? by Amy Fairchild: Riding forward into battle on your valiant steed? Or fighting the final boss in your video game? You decide!

Lament for Cookie by Walter Saul: A grade 2-3 piece in the Dorian mode in memory of my daughter Mary Anne's pet mouse.

Water Ballet by Jan Mittelstaedt: Actually, I never saw a water ballet, but I was imagining what it would be like.

Rivers and Tides by Drew Swatosh: Rivers and Tides is based on observations of the Columbia River at Wintler Park in Vancouver, Washington during the Fall of 2007. The piece began as a project for school where the prompt was to observe a natural environment, our own definition, and respond to that natural environment by creating art. As I observed the Columbia River at Wintler Park, I noticed the ocean-like tides and the flow of the river that lead to legato melodies, a steady tempo, performer-interpreted dynamic swells, and different musical phrases representing the variance in the tides and the movement of the water.

Music From a Lost Video Game: The Story in the Tapistry by Nicholas Yandell: This track is part of a set of pieces inspired by video game music. Each piece will capture some type of action or sequence in this imaginary gaming scenario. This composition takes place at the beginning of the game, where the backstory of the world and characters is being told through tapestry images flashing on the screen. This music both sets up the story and foreshadows the future adventures that await game players as they begin.

In Solitude by Ted Clifford: I wrote this piece last winter, which was in the middle of a pandemic surge, and in a particular state of feeling isolated in many ways, and thus the title. I think of it also as a song of simplicity, of slowing one's mind down to a state of appreciation of each moment we have on this planet and in this life.

Apathy by Timothy O’Brien: Movement two of the first piano sonata. This wistful piano solo was composed during multiple depressions. I wrote the second movement while I was 13. I was dealing with aggressive bullying and tremendous anger. In the full piano sonata I also touch on two other times in my life. I wrote the first movement while I was in High School as my sorrow turned to rage. The third movement was written in the style of a funeral march my freshman year of college as I was being kicked out of a religious institution due to my sexuality. Time has perfected these melodies and it was so cathartic to premiere this piece at the age of 31 in November of 2020.

Ballad in E Minor by Dianne Davies: Ballad in E Minor was inspired by Michelle Cheng and her interest in ballet and modern dance. During our conversation it became clear that she enjoyed contrasting drama and expression in music. Right away we decided on a piece that would have a fast, boisterous quality contrasted with a slower, lyric section. This Ballad follows A B C B A in form where section C is the lyrical, cantabile part. When composing this piece, I envisioned Michelle as the dancer portraying the story of this composition.

Nocturne by Elizabeth Blachly-Dyson: The first music I composed after the COVID-19 lockdown was a set of three little piano pieces. This third piece, Nocturne: Moonlit Delusions, features rippling sixteenth note triplets in intervals mainly of seconds and fourths. A slower melody rises above them or burrows below them. In the middle of the piece, the pattern changes, leading up to three big chords. Then the rippling pattern returns. The mood is that of a dream where one is always moving forward, but things don’t always make sense.

Prairie by Paul Safar: One of the vignettes from a suite that accompanied an audio book collaboration with Richard Leebrick called "Live on Wings of Love"

In the Midst of Beauty by Carolyn Quick: I originally sketched the idea for this piece in March of 2020 at the very start of the COVID-19 pandemic. At the time, it was a way for me to continue searching for beauty and hope in a strange and terrifying time. Upon re-visiting the work two years later, I found within it the same longing and optimism that we have all struggled to grasp onto. It is my hope that this piece relates both to our fears amid uncertainty and to the enduring human spirit which continually recognizes the beauty in our midst.

A Run in the Sun by Linda Woody: This violin duet was written for the fun-lovin’ Cook brothers, who both agreed they wanted a work that was upbeat and lively. Both boys enjoy a variety of sports and outdoor activities with friends, family and pets. This piece attempts to capture the boys’ compatibility and cheerful spirit with energy, momentum and attitude.

Dance at the Edge of the World by Nicholas Yandell: You’re straddling the edge of the world you live in and the entrance to another realm. You’re left choosing whether to stay in the familiar, or dive into the unknown. Thoughts of both worlds fill your head, pulling you this way and that, one then the other, until you’re re moving to the rhythms of two different dances at once. This world is all you know, and you may never be able to re-enter it if you leave, but how can you resist the opportunity to explore something entirely new? You weigh the possibilities. What would you choose?

Sounds of Siam for Piano by Liz Nedela: We chose to do a piano piece based on music of ancient Siam (modern-day Thailand), his mother’s birth country. A thorough study of the music, instruments, practices, and styles of Siam produced the piece. A brief description follows:

1. Melody for Wot (circular pan-flute), accompanied by Ranat Ek (xylophone) and Ranat Thum Lek
2. Exotic and dramatic Ranat Ek tremolos and Wot ornamented melody
3. Contemporary Phin Guitar melody and Klawn Yao Drum
4. The Competition: dramatic Pi Tai Oboe, dueling Ranat Ek and Thum Lek, and drum

Traditional music of Siam is taught by rote: 2/4 time, rhythmic steady beats, pentatonic, sparse accompaniment; voicing in treble signify xylophones (Ranat Ek (high) and Ranat Thum Lek (low)), microtonal flutes (Wot circular pan, Pi Tai triple reed), and Phin 3-string guitar; accompanied by Klawn Yao Drum. Repeated short, heavily-ornamented, exotic, dramatic melodies, as well as fun contemporary; all tightly-constructed ensembles, continual intense instrumental competition, with contrasts, dissonance, contrapuntal, and improvisation; introduced by four Ranat chords and drum, sometimes adding a loud ornamented announcement by the Pi Tai. The Ching finger cymbals (time-keepers to emphasize end beats) are used herein to add mysterious endings to the exotic.

IN GOOD HANDS 2022

PROGRAM NOTES

4:00 pm Concert

Oregon Sunrise by David Bernstein: This is just a little piece to suggest the beauty of an Oregon Sunrise. It is essentially a melody repeated twice over a moving bass line.

Variations on Bells by Walter Saul: Written for my daughter Mary Anne on an original theme she wrote when she was eight years old. In the Mixolydian mode. Grade 3.

Morning Walk for Solo Piano by Jan Mittelstaedt: This music was inspired by my morning walks during the beautiful weather of the summer and fall of 2021. It is a re-write of the first Morning Walk for piano and violin. The following is my poem which goes with the music:

Scattered pine needles under hanging branches form a soft path as I amble along.
Crunch, munch, crunch, feet upon the walkway,
I’m stepping on a bed of dried, brown pinnates.
Neighbors are jogging in bright running shoes
While filling their lungs with fresh morning air.
Freed from life’s worries, surrounded by beauty, birds sing so sweetly while breezes blow softly.

Frogs, Toads, and Pollywogs by Jan Mittelstaedt: Since I grew up in a town on Long Island which is located on a peninsula, I have always loved nature's bodies of water. Wouldn't it be fun to relax in the shade and watch frogs, toads, and pollywogs playing by a quiet stream?

Summer Rain by Amy Fairchild: This piece was composed on my back deck, in harmony with many little birds, singing the praises of a warm, welcome, and sweet summer rain.

June Bug Ballet by Paul Safar: This piece was inspired by the insects in the title. The work was choreographed for young ballet dancers. I look forward to hearing it in the context of a piano recital!

Autumn Morning by Drew Swatosh: Autumn Morning was composed around Thanksgiving 2021. We had had a dense fog advisory and visibility while driving wasn’t very far. Exploring the slow and contemplative nature of the Autumn morning, I used the color of the lydian mode, a major scale with a raised 4th scale degree. There is a cool crispness to the air and the leaves are falling, so I hope you will take a moment to enjoy some stillness within the transitory season.

Yggdrasil by Lisa Neher: I wrote Yggdrasil (pronounced “IG-druh-sill”) for Emma Xiong, a student of Wilma Hawkins, for Cascadia Composers In Good Hands 2022. Emma shared with me her love for legato, slow music in major keys and her enjoyment of fantasy books and trees. In Norse mythology, Yggdrasil is an enormous sacred tree that connects the human world to the heavens in its branches and the underworld through its roots. It is cared for by three Norns, goddesses who can see the past, present, and future. The long arpeggios represent the enormous tree stretching from root to branches, from underworld to heaven, and the middle section expresses the tree’s strength and grace.

Minuet by John DeRuntz: A minuet is a French court dance in three-in-a-measure time, slow and stately.
I Love You by Arthur Breur: A lovely piano piece about unrequited love. The main, descending melody is melancholy, desolate, and resolute, while the secondary melody provides moments of hopeful—but unresolved—longing. This piece is a beautiful and poignant representation of a deep crush.

Stars Over Yellowstone by Lisa Neher: I wrote Stars Over Yellowstone for pianist Christian Abbassi, a student of Nancy Stone, for Cascadia Composers In Good Hands 2022. Christian told me about a documentary he’d seen about Yellowstone National Park which included beautiful footage of a vast night sky full of stars over a wilderness full of mountains, forests, rivers, and canyons, populated by wolves, deer, bears, and bison. In this piece, you’ll hear the stars twinkling high in the piano and the majestic expanse of the park and the wild animals in the low register.

Sweet and Sour by Dianne Davies: Sweet and Sour was composed after meeting with Allison Cao. It was clear that Allison is well spoken and a math wizard. I immediately asked to compose her piece in changing, odd meters. Her instant and enthusiastic “yes” led to the 5/4 and 7/4 opening left hand motive of rocking, open fifths. Allison described the desire for a Chillin’ piece so that is the tempo mark name for section A. The title Sweet and Sour came from our common love of Asian food.

Three Sisters by John DeRuntz: I once knew three elderly, unmarried sisters who lived together. Although they cared for one another, they often seemed out of phase with each other. This prompted me to use a syncopated left hand accompaniment. The first sister's theme is in D major followed the second, down a third to B flat major. The third sister's theme is more subdued as she spent much of her time in a wheelchair and is down another third to F sharp major. The cycle continues back to the first two sisters to complete the piece.

Broken Pieces Brought Together by Walter Saul: In book 6 of the Harry Potter series, Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince, two horrible things take place:
- The wicked Voldemort has broken Harry’s soul up into seven pieces, or Horcruxes
- Harry Potter’s mentor and the Headmaster of Hogwarts, Dumbledore, dies a violent death.
In a fashion resembling the crucifixion of Jesus Christ rescuing our souls, Dumbledore’s death breaks Voldemort’s spell on Harry and a long process of Harry’s healing and personal growth begins. I chose this theme for Grace Xiong, who had recently read Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince. The five-part rondo begins with the broken pieces of Harry’s soul scattered all about. The second section, Dumbledore’s funeral music, leads into the return of the refrain, but now transformed by the reuniting of Harry’s soul. The dark struggles and temptations of revenge are mourned in the fourth section, while the closing refrain is a further transformation of Harry Potter – and of us, who actually endure tragedies and grow in love as we experience love from those around us.

The Hummingbird Waltz by by John DeRuntz: Like how a hummingbird flits around, pausing now and then, the piece employs a main theme of eighth note scale work with some interval jumps. The central section is more sedate and is followed by a variation of the first motif. Our hummingbird then rests for six measures for a modulation from E major to F sharp minor to finish with the opening theme.

Snowfall on Tundra by Amy Fairchild: A Haiku
Vast, hollow beauty
Ethereal crystals fly
White eternity

Petite Phantasia by David Bernstein: This piece is almost rhapsodic in the treatment of themes that mostly use five particular scales: Major-Minor-Chromatic-Whole Tone-and Pentatonic. These are scales that students must learn to play in a great deal of music that they will study. They are put into a rhythmic framework that I would say could be described as “funky” in terms of defining the overall quality of the work. And this work is challenging for most any student to perform.
The Confluence by Linda Woody:
This piece was adapted for solo piano, especially for Violet, from the final movement of an ensemble work called Deschutes River Riffles. The Deschutes River winds its way north through central Oregon’s mountains, meadows and canyons, and finally reaches the Columbia River. The unevenness of the wonky 7/8 meter represents the push and pull of the waves, rapids and eddies as the Deschutes flows into the larger river.

Avah’s Song by Arthur Breur: Commissioned as a gift for a bat mitzvah, Avah's Song is composed in the style of a pop tune--specifically, in the style of the songs sung by strong female pop singers such as Taylor Swift, Rihanna, Pink, and others. The work took its starting inspiration from the choral work "Sisi Ni Moja" by Jacob Narverud--a favorite song of the gift's recipient--and uses a climbing melodic line to represent inspiration, personal strength, drive, and accomplishment.

Best Vacation Ever! by David Bernstein: Maria and I decided to get together in this small collaboration and we very much enjoyed working with each other.

Homage to B7 by Adrienne Albert was composed for a compilation of 250 piano works in honor of LVB’s 250th birthday. It is published by Editions Musica Ferrum Vol.3: Titled “250 piano pieces for Beethoven" International Composition Project by Susanne Kessel, Bonn.

Masks - IV Joy by Jan Mittelstaedt: Sometimes our emotions do not express what we really feel. For example, Laughter often masks emotions such as embarrassment. Tears may be manipulative and Anger may cover up hurt or grief. The final movement musically expresses Joy which is reached when we throw away our masks and understand that God accepts us just as we are.

Lullaby by Paul Safar: From the children’s musical, Nisse’s Dream, for violin (or viola) and piano, this song (with lyrics) was used originally in the musical theatre comedy Nisse’s Dream (book and lyrics by Nancy Wood and music and lyrics by Paul Safar) in 2005. In the play, the character of the mother/witch sings the lullaby to the adolescent Nisse on the eve before their journey to retrieve the family cow from the pack of bumbling trolls. This instrumental rendition for violin or viola and piano was prompted by the wonderful annual recital, In Good Hands, produced by Cascadia Composers. I am grateful to Ramona Christensen and Judy Tanner for premiering this version of the song in summer 2022!

Go to sleep, my precious one
Night is coming soon
Listen to a lullaby, an old fashioned tune
Go to sleep, my precious one
Rest your tired eyes
Soon you shall wake to tomorrow's sunrise
Then will be the time for you to find your way
Now, we must get ready for dreamtime

Longing by Amy Fairchild: A voice from the ether, calling out to you. You can feel the presence and energy of a loved one, who is now gone, fill your being. These memories bring both heartbreak and joy, crashing over you like a wave. This is Longing.

Amadeus Blues by Paul Safar: This little piece was written as a 9th birthday present for my daughter.

Sunrise Over the Sahara by Lauretta Deforge: As I was composing the piece, Sunrise Over the Sahara, it began to take on a dance like quality that reminded me of Arabic music, hence the sunrise over the Sahara.

Mixolydian Sonatina by Liz Nedela: is written in the Mixolydian Mode beginning and ending on G (the “final”). It follows the pattern of a G Major Scale, except that the last two notes are a whole step: F-G. Since it is the structure of the ancient Mixolydian Mode, the harmony is based on 5ths and 4ths, emphasizing the Plagal: the fifth note above and the fourth note below the starting note of G. In this Sonatina, those two intervals are used to navigate through the mode, loosely following Western Harmony of I-vi-iii-ii-IV-V-I, leaving out the 3rd of each triad, which produces an “open sound”. There is no V7; but sometimes, a hint of a “7 Chord”. All of this will sound strange compared to the usual structure of a sonatina as we know it.
